IMOLA METHOD OF BUILD

IMOLA PARTITIONS

To assist in the installation of the Imola frame system and final glazing a number of graphic method of build guides have been developed. Should any onsite difficulties be encountered by the specialist sub contractor the Forza technical team are available to assist for "on time" project completion.

Imola has mastered the challenge of achieving aesthetic design combined with the performance requirements of Fire, Acoustics and Structural Stability. Standard dimension components are manufactured to project specific finishes enabling the client design team to create a visually unique workspace.

FIRE

The Imola partition system in both Mullion and Mullion free formats have been tested and assessed in accordance with the method and criteria of BS476: Part22: 1987.

The product specifications of Forza firescreens and the Imola Timber partition system to achieve integrity / insulation performance criteria of FD30/0, FD30/30, FD60/0, FD60/30 and FD60/60 are detailed in IFC Schedule reference PAR/11294/01 Rev B.

STRUCTURAL

The Imola Partition system has been subjected to a number of physical tests and CAD finite Element analysis simulations to confirm the structural stability complies with guidelines for Strength and Robustness detailed in various British standards.

Imola screen and partition systems fall within the recommended maximum displacement of 25mm detailed in BS6180-2011 and achieve a severe duty grade performance for partition stiffness (test annex A) detailed in BS5234-2.1992.
